AUCTION. EXTRAORDINARY.

I dreamed a dream in the midst of my slumbers, And as fast as I dreamed it, it came into numbers; My thoughts ran along in such beautiful metre, I'm sure I ne'er saw any poetry sweeter. It seemed that a law had been recently made, That a tax on old bachelors' pates should be laid; And in order to make them all willing to marry, The tax was as large as a man could well carry. The bachelors grumbled, and said 'twas no use; 'Twas horrid injustice, and horrid abuse; And declared, that to save their own heart's-blood from spilling,

Of such a vile tax they would not pay a shilling. But the rulers determined them still to pursue, So they set the old bachelors up at vandue; A crier was sent through the town, to and fro, To rattle his bell, and his trumpet to blow, And to call out to all he might meet on his way, "Ho! forty old bachelors sold here to-day!" And presently all the old maids in the town, Each in her very best bonnet and gown, From thirty to sixty, fair, plain, red, and pale, Of every description, all flocked to the sale. The auctioneer then in his labor began, And called out aloud, as he held up a man; "How much for a bachelor—who wants to buy?" In a twinkling every maiden responded "I—1." In short at a highly extravagant price The bachelors all were sold in a trice; And forty old maidens, some older, some younger, Each hugged an old bachelor home on her shoulder.

LOVE IN A PRINTING OFFICE.

I once heard an old Jour. remark, that a printing office was no place for love-making, and I have since experienced the truth of his observation—being now perfectly convinced that the flower of love can never bloom in the midst of types, stands and printing ink.

It was my fortune once to sojourn a few days in the village of ——. Directly opposite the office was a pretty white cottage, with a rose bush clambering around the casement, and I was not long making the discovery that the aforesaid white cottage with the rose shaded window, contained a fair inmate—a flower whose beauty far outshone the roses that clustered around the window. She was a little blue-eyed, sunny looking creature of some sixteen summers. She was the belle of the village. Her name was Mary, sweet, poetic Mary.

"I have a poetic passion for the name of Mary."

It was a beautiful summer morning, and I had raised the window to admit the cool breeze from the flower-decked fields, and it was not long before I perceived that the cottage window was also hoisted, and that sweet little Mary was seated near it, busily engaged with her needle. I worked but little that morning. My eyes constantly wandered towards the cottage window, where little Mary sat, and all sorts of strange and fantastic notions whirled through my fancy-lighted brain, and I began to think I felt a slight touch of what the poets call love, sliding in the corner of my heart.

A few days passed away, and chance made me acquainted with Mary. Heaven! she was a sweet creature—she had a form that would have shamed the famous Venus de Medici—a cheek that outblushed the richest peach—and a lip that would have tempted a bee from his hive on a frosty morning. I thought, as I gazed on her in a mute admiration, that I had never looked upon one so exquisitely beautiful. She seemed the embodiment of all that is lovely and bewitching.

Well, time passed on, and one day Mary expressed a desire to visit the printing office. Gai, thought I, what a chance! I'll do it there, yes, there in the midst of the implements of mine art—why shouldn't I? Love in a Printing Office—eh! There was something original in that, and I resolved to try it at all hazard.

Well, Mary came to the office, and I explained to her the uses of various implements of the black art—the press and the roller—the ink and the stands, and the boxes of the A. B. C's. I took an opportunity to snatch her pretty lily-white hand, and she drew it back, knocking a stick full of matter into pi!

"I must have a kiss for that, my pretty one," said I, and at it I went. I managed to twist my arm around her waist, and in struggling to free herself, she upset a galley of editorial, a long article on the Oregon question. Nothing daunted, I made at her again. This time I was more successful, for I obtained a kiss. By St. Paul! it was a sweet one, and the little witch bore it like a martyr—she never screamed once; but as I raised by lips from hers, she lifted her delicate little hand, and gave me a box on the ears—that made me see more stars than ever were viewed by Herschel through his big telescope.

Somewhat nettled, and with my cheek smarting with pain, I again seized her waist and said, "Well, if you don't like it, just take back the kiss." She made a desperate struggle, and as she jerked herself from my arms, her foot struck the lye-pot and over it went! Another galley of editorial was sprinkled over the floor, and in her efforts to reach the door, her foot slipped and she fell, and in the effort to sustain herself, her hand—her lily-white hand—the same little hand that had come in contact with my ears—oh, horrible!—was stuck up to the elbow in the ink keg! Shade of Franklin! what a change came over the beauty of that hand! She slowly drew it from the keg dripping with ink, and asked me what use I made of that tar! I began to be seriously alarmed and apologized in the best manner I could, and to my surprise, she seemed rather pleased than angry—but there was a "lurking devil in her eye" that told me there was mischief afoot. As I stood, surveying the black covering of her hand, scarcely able to suppress a laugh at its strange metamorphosis, she quickly raised it on high, and brought it down "ker slap" upon my cheek! Before I could recover from my surprise; the same little hand had again descended and again left its inky imprint on my other cheek.

"Why, Mary," I exclaimed, "what are you about?"

"I think you told me you rolled ink on the face of the form," she replied with a loud laugh, and again her hand lit upon my face—taking me a broad slap in the very middle of my countenance, and most wofully bedaubing my eyes. With a light step and a merry peal of laughter, she skipped through the door. She turned back when beyond my reach, and with her roguish face peering in at the doorway, shouted back,

"I say, Charley, what kind of a roller does my hand make?"

"Oh, said I, 'you take too much ink.'"

"Ha! ha!" she laughed, "well, good bye, Charley—that's my impression! ha! ha!"

I went to the glass and surveyed myself for a moment and verily believe that I could have passed for a Guinea negro without the slightest difficulty.

"And so," said I to myself, "this is love in a printing office. The devil fly away with such love!"

The next morning when the editor came to the office, I "rather calculate" he found things a little topsy turvy. However that made no difference to me—for I had mizzled long before daylight.

I bore the marks of that scene for many a day, and now whenever I see a lady enter a printing office, I think of little Mary, and keep my eyes on the ink keg—and though she were as beautiful as Hebe, I would not venture to touch her with a ten foot pole!

Talk about love in a boudoir—love in a bowser—love on a spring seat sofa—love by moonlight, starlight, lamplight or any other kind of light, and I am with you heart and soul—but I pray you by the ghost of Faust, never talk to me about love in a printing office!

NEWPORT DAILY NEWS.

THURSDAY, MAY 14, 1846.

¶ We take this occasion to return our most sincere thanks to our brethren of the press, with whom we exchange, for the kind, encouraging, and very flattering manner in which they have noticed the News. To many of them we are not personally known, so that no feelings of friendship, resulting from a long acquaintance, has induced them to cheer us on, in the manner of which we have spoken.

The News is now little more than a week old, and our success, thus far, has been far greater than our most fond hope had anticipated; and we trust, by strict attention to our business, and unremitting exertions to issue an interesting paper, containing the very latest news,—to merit a continuance of that patronage, which has been so generously bestowed upon us. The circulation of the News is large, and it is daily increasing, so that it offers to the public an excellent opportunity for advertising.

In conducting our paper, we shall always maintain an elevated and dignified position; never descending to personalities, unless justly provoked,—and then we shall deal out a remedy for any injustice done us, in such a manner as to show that we are not to be trifled with. We shall speak boldly and freely, on all subjects, maintaining an independent and manly spirit, injuring no one, wronging no one, but uttering the truth, with candor and impartiality. We intend to give the News a character, high and honorable, so that we shall be respected by all parties, grades and classes; and although a playful fancy may sometimes be exhibited in its columns, relative to passing events, we shall never speak with malignant bitterness, neither shall we intentionally injure the feelings of any one; and we hope and expect to be met in the same generous and courteous spirit, by all with whom we associate, either through the public press, or in the ordinary walks of life.

IMPORTANT.—Persons visiting a printing office, should strictly observe the following rules:—Never handle anything; never look at what the Editor is writing; never disturb the arrangement of his papers; never look over the compositor's shoulder, at his manuscript; never read the type, as it stands on the galley; never hold a conversation with any one in the office, except on business connected with the paper, and then be as brief as possible, and retire as soon as your errand is finished. Every gentleman will observe these rules, and be governed by them. Boys should never go into a printing office, except on an errand, and then leave immediately; news-boys should not enter, until the paper is ready for them, and then always keep in their proper place. A word to the wise is sufficient.

¶ The communication of our correspondent, "Roger Williams," is received. We do not think it good policy to publish the same, as it would probably lead to a protracted controversy, and from observation, we have invariably noticed that no one is benefited by such controversies. And, above all things, the columns of a daily paper is the very last medium suitable for such a warfare.

¶ The story which we publish on our outside to-day, entitled "Love in a Printing Office," we do not claim as our experience, not by any means,—we never do such things,—our fair friends need apprehend no fears in coming into our office.

¶ We are indebted to Mr. J. N. Dills, of the steamer Massachusetts, for New York papers, from which we made our selections yesterday morning; and for which he will please accept our thanks.

Also,—Capt. Ash, of sloop Tecumseh, will please accept our thanks for Mobile papers.

A NEW DANCE.—The inhabitants of Newport, in Rhode Island, (says an exchange,) must be an original people. They have invented a new quadrille, to which they have given the name of the "Leap Year Dance," in allusion to the ancient regulation, in the court of Cupid, which allows ladies to make the first advances in every year that gives twenty-nine days to February. In this dance all the ordinary rules of etiquette are reversed, the ladies selecting and inviting their partners, while the gentlemen modestly keep their seats until handed out by their fair choosers. We see abundance of good arise from this invention, among which we imagine not the least pleasant will be an augmentation of matrimonial fees to the clergymen, and an increased quantity of wedding cake in the good town of Newport.—Phil. Sat. Courier.

The Editor of the Courier is mistaken in supposing that this dance originated with the good people of Newport. We are informed by a young gentleman of this town, who is familiar with such matters, that it was introduced at a Ball here last winter, but that he obtained it elsewhere. The young people of Newport, however, know how to dance it. We would inform our friend of the Courier, however, that there has been "an increased quantity of wedding cake in the good town of Newport," this spring, as we are informed; but whether it is in consequence of the practice of the "Leap Year Dance," or not, we are unable to say.

¶ It is said that Sheridan Knowles has become religious, and retired from the Stage.

¶ Edward P. King, a young lawyer of Baltimore, has been sentenced to the Penitentiary for five years, for attempting to defraud the United States Government.

¶ Professor Maffit is preaching to crowded audiences in Rochester.

¶ The Tockwotten House, in Providence, is to be opened on the 15th inst.

¶ The papers are all filled with news from Mexico; nothing else is thought, talked, or written of, at present.

WARREN LADIES' SEMINARY.—The recent examinations at this Seminary closed another academic year of instruction.

An institution achieving what this one has achieved—an institution which, within a brief memory has passed from an insecure and feeble youth, to a sturdy and healthful maturity, needs no fulsome compliments to enhance its value or publish its success. The incorporation of the institution—the organization of an efficient board of trustees—the elegant and commodious additions to the seminary buildings with the improvement of the adjacent grounds, are all highly important changes in its recent history. Thus, placing it beyond the reach of pecuniary embarrassments, and greatly facilitating its operations, cannot fail to extend its attractiveness and utility, and greatly increase its prosperity. Its recent exhibitions have afforded unmistakable manifestations of continued ability on the part of the teachers, and of increased interest and assiduity on the part of those who have resorted thither for the acquisition and accomplishment of general study. In the morning exercises of the two days, we were proud to recognize that thoroughness of instruction and that judicious discipline, which has won for the institution, the happy good will and confidence of so many friends and patrons, both at home and abroad. Every examiner could discern the beneficial results, of that method, which appears to be the governing aim and principle of instruction. It is not the object of a limited study to aim at acquisition merely, but rather by constant discipline to attain such control of the mental powers, as shall adapt them, in this instance, to the varied necessities of active life, and ever, to the requirements of mental exertion.

The evening exhibitions of music, was highly creditable to the "singers as well as the players of instruments;" and the rhetorical exercises, agreeably interspersed, rendered each occasion gratifying to the mind and heart and taste of every listener.

The valedictory addresses, given by Miss Lake, of Newport, who then completed the full course of three years study,—formed the closing exercise of this literary festival. They were chastely and handsomely written, breathing at every line, the true spirit of womanly feeling and replete with those touching remembrances, which the separation of long cherished associates, never fails to awaken.—Warren Star.

WHEAT CROP IN ILLINOIS.—The crop never promised so well. The yield will be at least one-third greater than last year; though the yield was double that of either of the four preceding years. The surplus of the last crop exceeded 7,000,000 bushels,—which was disposed of at an average of 55 cents a bushel realized by the farmer.

BY THIS MORNING'S MAIL.

¶ We are indebted to Mr. CHARLES N. TILLEY, Ticket Agent of the New York Steamboat Line, for New York papers of yesterday afternoon.

From the N. Y. Express.

FROM WASHINGTON. THE WAR MESSAGE PASSED THE SENATE.

IMPORTANT PROCLAMATION FROM GEN. AMPUDIA.

The Senate adjourned at 7 1/2 o'clock last evening, after passing the House Bill—ayes 50, nays 2. This is the 50,000 Volunteer Bill, and $10,000,000 appropriation.

All efforts to change the Bill into a more peaceful form failed, and all amendments proposing to transfer the appointments of officers from the President to the Governor of the respective States also failed.

Other slight amendments relative to equipments, were adopted on the final passage of the Bill.

Mr. Crittenden moved to take a separation vote on the Preamble and Bill, so as to allow all the friends of the measures to vote for the supplies, for there were many opposed to the Preamble, who were in favor of voting the supplies. (This preamble speaks of an existing war.) A motion to strike out the preamble was rejected by a vote of ayes 18, nays 28.

Mr. Dallas decided that motion not to be in order, except by unanimous consent, and that consent seems likely to be given when Mr. Breese objected.

Mr. Breese then, strongly appealed to, from several quarters, withdrew his objections, but Mr. Bagby renewed it, and would not retract.

Mr. Mangum then rose, and in a noble and masterly style, and he was in favor of the Bill, and would vote for it, but he entered his solemn protest against the truth of what were alleged as facts in the preamble.

Mr. Clayton and others followed in a similar strain, when the vote was taken.

I cannot give you the names of the Senators voting in the negative, but Davis of Mass., T. Clayton of Del., Berrien of Geo., and Calhoun of S. C., refused to record their names.

The House took a recess to meet in half an hour, and would doubtless concur in all amendments sent to them from the Senate.

In looking over the New Orleans papers, I find a Proclamation, Gen. Ampudia has distributed through the American camp, pronouncing our government unworthy the Christian name.

It is addressed to the English and Irish soldiers under the orders of Gen. Taylor.

Gen. Taylor, as it appears to him, judging from the tenor of his Proclamation, was born in Great Britain.

General Ampudia refers to American antipathies to their birth-place, and to our efforts to take Oregon, and he calls upon these foreigners in the ranks of our army to come to the Mexican ranks; and he guarantees to them good treatment, and the payment of their wages, and expenses till their arrival at the beautiful capital of Mexico.

Germans, Poles, French, and individuals of other nations, he says, separate yourselves from the Yankees; and do not contribute to robbery, and usurpation, which civilized Europe will look upon with the utmost indignation.

Come and array yourselves, he continues, under the tri-colored flag, in the confidence that our arms will protect you, and that besides the Mexican flag, the English flag will soon wave over you.

Dated, April 6th, Head Quarters, on road to Matamoros.

¶ To-morrow we shall publish another document from the Ecclesiastical Council recently in session, in this town.

¶ We notice, by the New Bedford papers, that the divine MARY ANN LEE, the magnificent dancer, is delighting the citizens of that town, with her splendid performances. She is emphatically the "beautiful Queen of the Dance," and has been the admiration of all who have witnessed her graceful performances.

Why will she not visit Newport? We have no doubt but that she would be well patronized here.

¶ Rev. Mr. Torrey, whose death we recorded yesterday, it is said, has left a young and amiable wife, to mourn his premature demise. His remains will be taken to Boston for interment.

"Strange that a harp of thousand strings Should keep in tune so long."
THE subscriber has several chambers to let in his house, which is beautifully located directly opposite Trinity Church Burying Ground; he will rent the rooms with furniture, or without, as may best suit the tenant. There is, probably, no more desirable spot in Newport, for those whose souls are not entirely steeped in sin, and wrapped up in the flimsy veil of this world's delusion; the occupant may sit at the window, and view the last home of man in all its mysterious and solemn grandeur,—and seriously reflect upon the great uncertainty of all things human. Here he can commune with himself, and meditate, in full view of the grave yard, on the final consummation of all things, and anticipate that universal crash, when the earth shall be buried up, and the heavens be rolled together as a scroll. We must reflect upon these things here, and be prepared with our passport when we meet the last Tyler, or we shall receive the fatal mark of the black brush; why, land! what is a few day's sojourn in this miserable world, compared to a high seat in the Celestial Lodge above, where the Knighthood will be gathered in the pure robes of innocence and beauty!
In order to secure the chambers, early application should be made, to

New Store and new Goods, at the old stand, where the public have been favored with so many good bargains. 91 Thames street, one door north of Messrs. W. B. & F. J. Swan's. THE PROPRIETOR of this Establishment has the pleasure of informing the people of New-York and its vicinity, that he has leased the new and commodious store, 91 Thames street, for the purpose of carrying on the Ready Made Clothing Business, where the public may be assured that they will always find on hand the largest assortment of Clothing and Furnishing Goods in the place, as well as the lowest prices. If I can but induce the people to call upon me, I will give them the most positive proof of the truth of this assertion, as I am determined to secure for the United States Clothing Store a tremendous run of custom, and, aware as I am, that competition is so severe, that the only mode of success is to offer my Goods at a small advance on Cost. ORRIS Tooth Paste, Orris Tooth Powder, Orris and Chlorine Tooth Wash, at very low prices by R. J. TAYLOR. May 4-1846

Edited by JOHN INMAN and ROBERT A. WEST. IN entering upon the fifth volume of the Columbian Magazine we find ourselves somewhat perplexed as to the right execution of our task.—We have much to say of the past, but it might seem egotistical to say it; and we have much to say of the future, but we fear lest we should appear unduly to boast. On the other hand, something at this season must be said, lest we should appear ungrateful for the steadily increasing patronage bestowed upon us. Is not ours a pleasant predicament? On one hand stands the spirit of our proverbial modesty, and the moment we begin to speak of what we have done and shall do, it lays its shadowy finger upon its ghostly lips, and with other mysterious gestures flows us into silence; on the other hand the generous public—the embodiment and impersonation of several thousands of subscribers and readers—demands that we pay tribute to their liberal patronage, that we recall the pleasures they have been wont to enjoy for now two years in our pages, and that we declare our plans for the future. We have, of course, no choice left but to exorcise the ghost of our native bashfulness. "It is done;—and now we will talk freely with our 'dear public,' of ourselves and our intentions.

How rapidly, and notwithstanding difficulties to be surmounted, how pleasantly has time sped since we tried the experiment of a new magazine in this great emporium of commerce. Two years only have elapsed, and yet our enterprise has been crowned with success, and the pages of the Columbian Magazine periodically gladden and instruct the hearts of the matchless fair ones of our own grand city and state; throwing the light of its pleasant tales and over virtuous sentiments over many thousand family circles, fostering pure affections and teaching lessons that well might fall from mother's lips into maiden's listening ears. Already has our magazine numerous readers in every State of the Union. The shrewd and observant New Englander greets it with a hearty welcome; on summer's eve beneath shady trees, or on winter's night around the glowing hearth, many a youthful seion of a worthy sire reads aloud from its pages, while beautiful and virtuous daughters ply the willing needle, and aged sire and dame exchange approving and delighted glances. Far away in the thickly peopled West do we aid in uplifting and perpetuating the refining influence of literature and art, and soothe the asperities of arduous toil and isolated life; and the sunny South greets us monthly with a frank and generous welcome. Yes, brief though our existence has been, it has neither been profitless nor joyless. We have sought to supply Americans with a magazine worthy of America, and the universal hail of welcome that has greeted us has far exceeded our expectations, while it has increased our conviction that a magazine such as we have been able to furnish, was needed for the many thousands of American readers.

We enter upon our third year with bright and cheering prospects. Every where has the press spoken in terms of high commendation, not alone of the literary contents of the Columbian, but of its unsurpassed embellishments, and never with warmer praise than during the last six months. This, with our increased circulation, we take as an acknowledgement that we have fulfilled the promises we renewed six months ago. We need not again renew them. Be it ours to do and not to boast. To those who have patronized us so far, we offer grateful thanks. We have no doubt that we shall continue to secure their approval and their good wishes. To those who, now that the new POSTAGE LAW is in full operation and a new year is commencing, will doubtless swell the list of our patrons, we say that we have contracted for, and have in progress some of the richest and rarest embellishments, for the new volume, that have ever been produced in this country—embellishments designed as well as engraved expressly FOR THE WORK; and that we have entered into treaty with many of the first American authors regularly to aid us by their literary labors. These arrangements have of course entailed upon us great expense, but we intend that the Columbian shall be the first—in every respect the best—of American magazines. Let there be no misapprehension on this point, and let our friends give us the return of a still larger patronage, for we will deserve it.

As to the past or future discharge of our editorial duties it behooves us to say little. We shall indeed but express our obligations to our numerous correspondents, and request a continuance of their favors, assuring them that they shall ever have the most courteous attention at our hands.

We have but to add that the publisher enters upon a new volume, therefore, with expectations of increased patronage. He has every reason for indulging such expectations. Increased exertions will be made to deserve it in each department of the work.

Speaking of correspondents, we refer with pride to the annexed list of those who have hitherto aided us, embodying, as it does, names that are an honor to our country's literature—those who have attained to the highest fame and others
